

MAN IN THE STREET

The married women teachers will be retained in Memphis and civil war has been averted in the Blue City. When spinsterhood arrays itself against matrimony that way, it ought to lose out.

Verdict is Guilty.
The Trib. Monday evening stated that the Harding administration was on trial in Indiana, that the jury was out and clear in the contest between Sen. Harry S. New and former Sen. Beveridge. Sen. New's re-election "would be a sweeping endorsement of the administration; his defeat a crushing repudiation of Mr. Harding's course." Boy, page Sen. Raleigh.

Chauncey Dewey says the secret of longevity is the elimination of things one likes best. That is a secret that not so many people will heed. Besides, if revealed, it might ruin the onion and corned beef and cabbage markets.

There is no disgrace in placing trousers seats if the polishing isn't done on park benches and hotel lobby chairs.

It is entirely wrong for the government to interfere with the liberties or business of the citizen unless it finds that he is enjoying himself and making money.

Chicago is now censoring the movie vamp kisses and other close-ups, but up to the hour of going to press Bill Hart's guns are safe.

The Bishop of Manchester lays the world's his to the way women dress. We can't see that women dress so much.

Lady Nancy is a 100 per cent woman. This distinction entitles her to the freedom of Mishawaka, and if she will write the time of her arrival we'll get Mayor Billy Dodge to meet her at the station.

We suppose reforming folks must be more profitable and not so exhausting as working for a living.

"Men must borrow our mercy and we must use justice," says Lady Astor. Well, the women will have to use men's justice sparingly, for there's not enough to go round unless spread as thin as a stepchild's bread-and-butter.

Chauncey Dewey at 88 says: "Don't overwork, don't overpay, don't overeat, don't overwork. Answer: 1. Nobody does. 2. Ten cent limit or 25 cents a corner is moderate. 3. How can one at present prices? 4. Quit your kiddin', Chauncey."

"No household should be without a grandmother," writes Angelo Patri. With the baseball season well swung, many homes need scores of grandmothers to provide against the frightful mortality.

A smart spring hat that attracted attention on Lincoln Way in other day was trimmed with four roses and three feathers. If they go to trimming hats with "Four Roses" and "Three Feathers" we predict that the men in New York will go in for millinery.

The European astrologers who predicted that 1922 would be a year of disaster seem to be piling up an awful score of hits. The republicans ought to bank heavily upon such gloomy prophecies for victory, for their success would be the crowning cataclysm of the year.

Replying to Bob Knoblock, we must confess that we have no definition of "rapper" unless it be "a hen with full grown wings."

We fancy Jack Dempsey, now in France, is being deeply impressed by the battlefields where real fighters fought.

A Chicago footpad went through the pockets of a pedestrian, found nothing and sent him on his way. Upon second thought, he overhauled him and searched again and found $100 concealed in a shirttail knot. This is a day of research.

A Bible publishing house suggests that some give mothers a Bible on Mother's Day. Our notion is that the sons need the Bibles. At least, that's the way it appears in Mishawaka.

It is said that 2,000,000 American women are in domestic service, in spite of the new conditions caused by the war. We can't realize it. We thought the domestic servant of yesterday required the mistresses of the house to do the work.

Mishawaka feels a laudable pride in all her banks, because they're all good advertisers.

Miss Hazel Green says the time will come when men and women will dress alike. Not in one time, Hazel. The Knights of the Unseemly Shank will always be numerous, regardless of fashion's decrees.

Miss Jeanette Rankin, formerly representative in congress from Montana, says she expects to return to congress. Then she must have joined the democratic party.

Plymouth's town band is already practicing airs to play Congresswoman Esther O'Keefe to the station en route to Washington.

In Pittsburgh, prohibition raiders found whisky under a flock of setting hens. Not a hatchery, but a hootchery.

A Scotchman is in Indiana trying to beat the record of seventy-two hours for continuous piano playing. A man who succeeds in pounding a piano for more than seventy-two hours ought to try out for the record-pounding record. We repudiate him.

A printer's devil in Oklahoma, hearing that he had fallen heir to $2,000,000 quit the job. Now what sort of a devil will he be?

The Birmingham News cries out in painful paraphrase: "O Liberty, what rotten hootch the country burs in thy name." It sounds like a next morning wall. Let it alone.

District Attorney Banton of New York, declares that the Garden of Eden was the scene of the first crime wave. Trying to lay it on Indiana again.

"The eternal feminine leads us upward," quoth Arthur Brisbane. Right into the air.

A nuptial kiss was broadcast in New York, the smack being wafted thousands of miles in every direction. Excuse us from the radioed kiss that doesn't even thrill the listening ear, much less tickle one's toes.

We think Mr. Bryan is entirely right in rejecting the theory that man descended from monkeys, but sometimes it is mighty difficult to think that some of them didn't descend from wolves or hogs.

"Who reads Dickens now?" asks an editorial writer. We can't call their names, but those who love real joy do not pass Dickens up. The Dickens reader has a circle of friends who remain faithful through every vicissitude of life down to the final slumber.

Our notion is that the man who builds a one-story business house on a sixteen-story lot is blind in one eye and can't see well out of the other.

In the meantime, gaze upon the blossoms and then say if a bunch of low planted right in the midst of them would not help your case.

Princess Mary selected "Decameron Nights" for her first post-nuptial appearance at the theater, a play that if presented according to the standards of modern realism probably shows how tame society was in the days of Giovanni Boccaccio.

Mary Garden, fair and forty, is just finding that bossing anybody is not a spinsterial job. It is the woman who has bossed a husband, nine children, a Jersey cow and a Sedan that is equipped for dressing affairs.

One Indiana politician wants the banking law changed so that he can be prosperous. Banking laws do not create prosperity. For politicians who crave money, there is but one course, viz., work.

We notice that Harvey Jones, the man "with a heart," is still in the city and attending to business, and so is Mister Hennessy, if you please.
